

'Cloudy' days ahead in the park

Moving business software applications to the Cloud is a 'game changer', saving money and improving business processes at the same time

You cannot pick up a business journal or read a business website without the word Cloud appearing somewhere 'on the horizon'! It is used to describe where the latest generation of business software solutions are located and then delivered to users via the internet. They are 'in the cloud'. The Cloud revolution has been here for a while and many organisations have embarked on the journey of replacing their current 'on-premises' systems with solutions in the Cloud.

For those who make this journey the benefits and opportunities are considerable both in terms of resources and funds savings, but also in the facilities and functionality that modern business software delivers.

In the beginning, many organisations were reluctant to make the move. Most citing potential issues with the security and safety of their important business information. When challenged, the reality is that the level of security provided by reputable Cloud vendors is often way beyond what organisations have for their in-house IT systems!

You may have similar, and other, concerns about moving your business systems to the Cloud. At Brovanture we have experience of implementing Cloud solutions for all types and sizes of organisation, both commercial and public sector. Why not contact us and learn from our experience? No obligation, we are always happy to talk and even meet to help our business neighbours in Surrey. We also run frequent free webinars, which will give you a flavour of what the Cloud and Brovanture can bring to your organisation. These are listed at brovanture.com/services/oracle-training/
